Needham Mitnick and Pollack can provide special needs planning for a child or individual with disabilities. A Special Needs Trust, or supplementary trust, can be established so that government benefit eligibility is preserved while at the same time providing assets that will meet the supplemental needs of the person with a disability. A Special Needs Trust must be designed specifically to supplement, not replace, public benefits. Other areas of expertise include long-term care planning and disability planning, Medicaid planning, and more.

Staff works with persons of all ages, including those with mental and physical disabilities, and their families. Our attorneys and staff, take the tine to listen and understand our client's problems and to find solutions for them. Of utmost importance to us is helping our clients maintain their dignity as they plan for the future.

Support services provided through other professionals who provide essential services to our clients. We can identify financial planners, social workers, elder care professionals, or others, and work with them to help you create and implement the best plan to meet your needs.
